SUMMARY

In this publication a unique set of ostraca from TT 87 (tomb of Nakht-Min, 18th dynasty) inscribed with cursive hieroglyphic texts – mainly Coffin Texts – is presented, and it can be shown that they served as a continuous sequence of (intermediate) master-copies (“Zwischenvorlagen”) for the scribe who decorated the subterranean burial chamber of TT 87. Beside a description and photographic publication of the material, the synoptic presentation of both texts allows the rare comparison between original (ostraca) and copy (tomb wall) and thus gives answers to some hitherto unexplained peculiarities in Nakht-Mins funerary texts.
